A BIG SURPRISE FOR THE FINAL FIVE: District Superintendent Dr. Elizabeth Everitt and Associate Superintendent for Instruction Mr. King Laurence personally congratulate the 2015 Teacher of the Year Honor Court

On Friday, February 20, 2015 at 11:30 a.m., a surprise was en-route to a handful of Aiken County Public School District teachers. The District Superintendent Dr. Elizabeth Everitt and Associate Superintendent for Instruction and Accountability Mr. King Laurence visited the Teacher of the Year Honor Court and personally congratulated them on their continued journey in the process to being named Aiken County Public Schools 2015 Teacher of the Year.

The first stop on the congratulations caravan was Jackson Middle School where the Superintendent found Rosalyn Cowart Greene putting in grades for her seventh grade English Language Arts students during the teacher work day. "You really caught me off guard," she said. Mrs. Greene said she was very honored and couldn't wait to tell her family—especially her mom, a 33-year veteran of the profession. "I owe my teaching ability to her, yet she calls me the 'improved version' of herself."

Many middle school educators met at USC-Aiken today to collaborate and plan STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Math) activities for their students.

And that's just where Dr. Everitt and Mr. Laurence surprised Tosha Latrece Quattlebaum
